Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co. Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to, evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. I will give twenty dollars, if taken in the county of Fairfax, or district of Columbia; if beyond that distance, the above reward, provided he is secured in jail so that I get him again. The said negro is about 25 years of age, and about 5 feet six inches high, of a yellow complexion; he had on a blue cotton jacket, and linen trowsers. When committed, he said he was the property of Mr. Elliot, of Baltimore, but now says he is the property of a Mr. Tyson, of the same place, and that he will be entitled to his freedom in a short time.
The owner is requested to come forward and prove property, pay charges and take him away, otherwise he will be disposed of as the law directs.

PURCHASED BY
Oct 4 LAWRASON & FOWLE.

Mr. Editor,

KNOWING that there is a number of the most worthless of society, who make it a business to spread evil reports respecting the solvency of banks in the different parts of the United States, for the purpose of depreciating and purchasing their paper, I feel it is my duty to give a list of the Banks of the District of Columbia, that it may be made known to all persons in every part of the Union, that the said Banks do pay specie for their notes, on demand, and that they are justly entitled to the highest credit and standing, and that they are opposed to a suspension of specie payments, and will be the last in the country that will agree to such a measure. This communication is made to prevent imposition, and to inform all persons who may have the paper of those banks, in any part of the Union, that they may hold it as so much specie. Persons emigrating and travelling north, south or west, would do well by taking the notes of those banks, as they will always find them equal to specie, and often to command a premium of 5 to 10 per cent, for remittances to Baltimore, Philadelphia & New-York. To my numerous acquaintances (trading men,) and the community, I pledge myself for the forgoing.
The following are the banks of this district that pay specie for their notes on demand, viz:
The Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Georgetown,
Central Bank of Georgetown & Washington,
Union Bank of Georgetown.
Bank of Columbia,
Bank of the Metropolis,
Patriotic Bank of Washington,
Bank of Washington,
Bank of Alexandria,
Union Bank of Alexandria,
Farmers' Bank of Alexandria,
Bank of Potomac,
Branch Bank of the United States at Washington.
I hold myself responsible for the foregoing declaration to the public. Done at my Exchange Banking House, Bridge-street, Georgetown, this 26th day of May. 1819.
ROMULUS RIGGS.
Editors of newspapers throughout the United States, by giving the above a few insertions, will greatly benefit the community. R. R.

THE CAPE COD BARD'S ADDRESS TO A DANDY.

Argument.—The bard beginneth with a pious ejaculation, and expresseth his surprise at a pair of trowsers—talketh extravagantly of a coat and a ruffle—falleth to guessing—maketh apt comparisons—praiseth the voice of the Dandy, and encourageth him by assurances that he is not like any of the works of creation, and argueth that he may reasonably expect an apotheosis.

Lord bless us, what trowsers! six stripes at the side [wide!
Of each leg, and the bottoms so prettily
How convenient the straps that so draw in the b——y, [to a jelly.

Your limbs you might save by your rampart

But lastly your voice, O how melting its sound,
By its melody charming all hearers around;
So affectedly soft and so tenderly witty,
He must be a blockhead, who don't think you pretty.

CAPE COD BARD.

From the Pittsburg Gazette, June 4.

The following extract is from a letter from a young midshipman in the American navy, to his brother in this place. We publish it without alteration or amendment, as affording a proof, in our opinion, of the correct organization of our navy: the writer is still in his boyhood, and received his warrant within three or four years; he entered the service, with a very imperfect education. The style and subject of his letter prove that the mere mechanical duties of their profession do not occupy all the time of our young officers; and, we are informed, that our commanders take considerable pains in recommending and enforcing the necessity of general improvement.

"It would be much easier, and much more gratifying to me, to turn to and write a descriptive account of Pittsburg, than to undertake to give you any tolerable view of any of the cities I have visited; but you have requested it, and as it may be amusing to you to have some understanding of what you will probably never see, as well as to enable you to judge how successful I may be in description, I will give you some little account, not of Messina, where we are at this moment, but of Syracuse, from which place you heard of us last. The former, though an old establishment, has nothing about it but what is modern, and nothing curious but its site, which is upon the Strait, so often and so terribly depicted by the poets of antiquity, betwixt the abodes of those infernal furies, Scylla and Charybdis. What was fearful to mariners of the olden time, has no terrors for us, for we beat through the strait with the whole squadron, in any, and all kinds of weather. But Syracuse was so early conspicuous, and occupies so large a portion of history, that I hope it will not be unamusing to you to know what it is; and for what it was, I refer you to Rollin, and Plutarch in his life of Dion and Dyonisius.

"Syracuse, that once swarmed with half a million of people, and often marched fifty thousand soldiers to the field, is now sunk into a village, containing no more than five thousand inhabitants, and scantily and miserably supplies about three hundred Neapolitan troops,—every one of whom, I have no doubt, would take to their heels at the sight of a sloop of war or marine guard in hostile army. The defences of Syracuse are said to be a master-piece in fortification; and were commenced (if not completed) in the time of Charles V.; this is a science, however, of which I have little or no knowledge, and can only say, the works are apparently of great strength, erected at a great expense of labor and materials, and to my eye truly grand and magnificent: from without the walls, the spires and column of front of churches, and the insurmountable walls, the ditches, the bastions, and the "whole pomp and circumstance of war," would lead you to imagine you would find within, the gorgeous palaces and splendid temples that graced the magnificent conquest of Marcellus—but on entering, you find narrow streets reeking with every variety of filth—men, women and children, ragged, dirty and servile, without even a natural sense of decency; for there is hardly a street in the place which you can pass without seeing one or the other of them performing those offices that many of the beasts of the field seek privacy in doing—the houses old, foul and in decay; poverty covers every thing as with a pall, except the churches and temples, which are here, and in all Catholic countries which I have visited, as worthy of Him, "which is, and which was, and which is to come," as the labor of man can erect. The most splendid occupies the site of a temple of Minerva, and the two side walls are composed of the stupendous pillars of granite that formed the enormous colonade of the ancient temple; the modern architect has only filled the intercolumned spaces with stone and mortar, leaving within and without a segment of the column sufficient to enable one to judge of the diameter of the shaft—the proud capitals are gone, and their bases sunk into, or covered by the earth.

"The fountain of Arethusa where the poets have sung her disporting with her lovely and attendant nymphs, still bursts from the ground, and may well be imagined the Alpheus even now; that river you know was fabled to have descended into the earth at Greece and to have emerged in the fountain at Syracuse—the water is clear, and so pure and soft that all the washing of the town is done in it. It is a considerable stream, flows with rapidity, and comes right out from under the foundations of Syracuse. Instead of the modest, retiring and beautiful Arethusa and her attendants, it is now constantly crowded with washer-women of the place, and the wives of the soldiers from twelve to sixty years of age, with their petticoats so closely tucked up as to leave little for the imagination to supply.

About two miles from the gates is the burial ground of the ancients; some of the graves were opened whilst we were there; they were all cut into the solid rock in pa- [illegible] two feet deep, with a ledge of about two inches surface and four inches fall, upon which they placed, and very nicely fitted, a single stone of that thickness which closed upon the dead for ages, and would have continued until the great globe itself shall dissolve, but for the relentless zeal of antiquarian curiosity. In the neighborhood the Syracusians show you what they believe to be the tomb of Archemides; it is a square space of about six feet every way, cut into the side of the rock and ornamented in front with two small Ionic pilasters, and a pediment upon which they say the sphere and cylinder were cut, but have been effaced by time. The only reason I thought they had to vest the property of it in Archimedes, was that it was the most respectable tomb among the thousands that remain, and all they know about Archimedes is, that he was one of the most distinguished men that ever lived, and was a Syracusan. They seem to be as ignorant in regard to his tomb at this day, as their ancestors were during the questorship of Cicero: they, you may remember, discovered the tomb of this great philosopher by the small pillar with the sphere and cylinder which had been erected at his own request, wishing to immortalize himself, for what seems to me to be among the least of his discoveries, the relative capacity of the things containing and contained.

About one mile further you meet with that quiz upon the antiquarians, the ear of Dionysius; the idle story of its increasing powers of sound, and of its being intended as a prison, and of the tyrant's using it as an instrument of discovery, are all refuted.—On entering it, I think we may safely assert what it was not, in these particulars, but some one of greater reach of mind than I am able to undertake, to ascertain what it was. It is an incision evidently the work of the hands and tools of man cut into the figure about forty paces in extent, with a base of 20 feet, and rising pyramidically to a height of about ninety feet, when it terminates in a groove about two feet broad, and the segment of a circle about 8 inches semi-diameter, the sides to the very top have been smoothed with the utmost nicety by the mallet and chisel; now I believe you and I may as well guess at what it was intended for, as the wisest of the antiquarians! neither he nor we shall ever ascertain it. Near to this cell there is one of the grandest remains of antiquity. An amphitheatre that accommodated 30,000 people sitting, cut into the side of a hill of solid granite; there are twenty eight rows of seats still entire; they are in a row of sixes, intersected by corridors four feet broad, the seats are full two feet deep and two and an half high,—the area where the beasts of prey mingled with each other in conflict, or engaged their more intrepid and dangerous antagonists, the gladiators, is in truth a considerable field, and at this moment occupied by much more useful, though less entertaining tenants, a host of white headed cauliflowers.

The Latomo lies upon another quarter of the town, and the knowing ones have converted it into a jail underground to accommodate the leading trait in the character of Dionysius. It is no more nor less than a large stone quarry, which supplied in former times this immense capital of Sicily with all its building stone, and it is very true that Dionysius worked it with his prisoners of war, who in those times were always made slaves and became the property of the state or the captor. A part of the floor is now occupied by a beautiful flower and fruit garden, worked by a party of Franciscan friars, whose monastery surmounts this immense excavation, and affords good society and most excellent cheer. In one of its vaults, called the cemetry, there are about seventy princes, generals, admirals, abbots, Franciscans, knights of St. John, &c. of all ages and nations, dressed in the richest attire of their day, who lie exposed in open coffins, exhibiting a shocking spectacle of the nothingness of this world. This is but a small sample of what I shall do hereafter, should I succeed by amusing you with this. It is promised we shall go to Athens this summer, and you must not be surprised if the next you get be dated from the Acripolis.

Such of our readers as have perused the second series of "Tales of my Landlord," will no doubt read with pleasure the following article; and the story of the Heart of Mid-Lothian will acquire an increasing interest from the evidence here furnished, that the individuals in it were not imaginary beings, the ideal productions of the author's fancy—but were real living characters, whose history is correctly detailed, and the incidents of whose lives were well recollected by persons with whom they associated, and who were able to confirm those particulars which might not generally have been before supposed to be founded in fact. To the person who politely transmitted us the article, we feel indebted—and we shall be still more obliged at a reception of similar marks of attention. [Georgia paper. Savannah Courier.

JEANY AND EFFIE DEANS.

It is not, we believe, very generally known, that the celebrated tale of "The Heart of Mid-Lothian" is founded on fact, and that its heroines resided for the greater part of their lives in the immediate neighbourhood of Dumfries. Of these facts, however, our readers will entertain no doubt, when they shall have perused the following narrative, which we have been obligingly permitted to extract from a memorandum, made by a lady, long before last series of the Tales of my Landlord had been announced, and we distinctly pledge ourselves to the public for the authenticity of its contents.

EXTRACT.

"As my kitchen and parlour were not very far from each other, I one day went in to purchase chickens from a person I heard offering them for sale. This was a little stout looking woman, who seemed between 70 and 80 years of age. She was almost covered with a tartan plaid, and her cap had over it a black silk hood, tied under the chin, a piece of dress still much in use among elderly women in that rank of life in Scotland. Her eyes were dark, and remarkably lively and intelligent.—I entered into conversation with her, and began by asking how she maintained herself, &c. She said that, in winter, she fitted stockings, that is, knitted feet to country people's stockings;—an employment which bears about the same relation to stocking making that cobbling does to shoe making, and is, of course, both less profitable and less dignified. She added, that she taught a few children to read, and in summer, "whiles reared a wheen chickens." * * * * "After some more conversation, during which I was more and more pleased with the good sense and naivette of the old woman's remarks, she rose to go away. I then asked her name. Her countenance was suddenly clouded, her colour slightly rose, and she said gravely, or rather solemnly, "My name is Helen Walker; but your husband kens weel about me."

"In the evening, I mentioned to Mr. —— the new acquaintance I had made, and how much I had been pleased, and inquired what was remarkable in the history of this poor woman. Mr. —— said, there were few more extraordinary persons than Helen Walker. She had been early left an orphan with the charge of a sister considerably younger than herself, whom she educated and maintained by her exertions. It will not be easy to conceive her feelings, when she found that this only sister must be tried by the laws of her country for child-murder, and herself called on as the principal witness against her. The counsel for the prisoner told Helen, that if she could declare that her sister had made any preparation, however slight, or had given her any intimation whatever of her situation, such a statement would save her sister's life. Helen said, "It is impossible for me, Sir, to give my oath to a falsehood, and whatever be the consequence, I will give my evidence according to my conscience." The trial came on.—The sister was found guilty and condemned. In removing the prisoner from the bar, she was heard to say to her sister, "O Nelly! ye hae been the cause o' my death!" Helen replied, "Ye ken I buid to speak the truth."

"In Scotland six weeks must elapse between the sentence and its execution, and Helen availed herself of it. The very day of her sister's condemnation she got a petition drawn up stating the peculiar circumstances of the case, and that same night set out on foot from Dumfries to London, without introduction or recommendation. She presented herself in her tartan plaid and country attire before John Duke of Argyle, (after having watched three days at his door,) just as he was stepping into his carriage, and delivered her petition. Herself and her story interested him so much, that he immediately procured the pardon she solicited, which was forwarded to Dumfries, and Helen returned, having performed her meritorious journey on foot, in the course of a few weeks.

"I was so strongly interested in this narrative, that I earnestly wished to prosecute my acquaintance with Helen Walker; but as I was to leave the country the next day, I was obliged to postpone it till my return in spring, when my first walk was to Helen's cottage. She had died a short time before. My regret was extreme, and I endeavored to obtain some account of her from a woman who inhabited the other end of the house. I enquired if Helen had ever spoken of her past history, her journey to London, &c. "Na," said the old woman, "Helen was a wily body, and whenever ony o' the neighbors spierd ony thing about it she aye changed the discourse." In short, every answer I received only served to raise my opinion of Helen Walker, who could unite so much prudence to so much heroism and virtue."

Helen Walker lived on the romantic banks of the Clouden, a little way above the bridge by which the road from Dumfries to Sanquhar crosses that beautiful stream. The name of her younger sister is said to have been Tibby, (Isabella) and it is known that after her liberation from Dumfries jail, she was united in marriage to the father of the little innocent whose premature death had brought her life into jeopardy, and that she lived with him in the north of England, where Helen used occasionally to visit her. The interview betwixt Helen and Mrs. ——, above detailed, took place in October 1736, and the remains of the old woman were interred in the church-yard of Irongray, in spring 1787, without a stone to mark the spot where they are deposited.

Kingston, (Jam.) May 7.

Letters were yesterday received in this place from Curracoa, which state that Brion's squadron, composed of nearly 20 sail, which had sailed from Margarita for Cumana, had experienced a severe gale, in which the whole squadron had been either dismasted or otherwise injured, and that the Commodore's ship had with great difficulty succeeded in returning to Margarita, with 9 feet water in her hold. These letters adds that out of 800 British troops which had arrived at that Island, 200 had already been carried off by disease although it is considered the most healthy of the West-India Islands. Other advices say, that Bolivar was completely paralized in his military operations.

Norfolk, June 16.

FROM MONTEVIDEO

Capt. Small, of the Eliza Reilly, furnishes the following information:—The schr. ——, Richardson, of Charleston, left Montevideo on the 6th of March for Rio Grande, for a cargo, as no hides were to be had at the former place; the ship Diomede, Page, of Boston, sailed for Buenos Ayres 28th March, for a cargo; the schooner Plattsburgh, Partlow, of Baltimore, also sailed for Buenos Ayres about the 3d of April; the Brig Amazon, Phillips, of Baltimore, arrived at Montevideo from Rio Janeiro, about the 10th April, with wheat; and the ship Laguira, Davis of New-York, and Brig Mary, Child, of Baltimore, both from Rio Janeiro, with wheat, arrived about the same time. The ship Caroline, Humphreys, of Boston, from the coast of Patagonia, had arrived at Montevideo, in want of provisions, and would sail again for the coast about the 18th of April. The ship Georgiana, Stone, of Norfolk, sailed from Maldonado for Marseilles, the 24th of March.

A Portuguese brig from Bahia had arrived at Maldonado, and reported that a Portuguese man of war had arrived at Bahia, in a very shattered condition, having had a severe engagement with one of Artigas's privateers, which terminated in the surrender of the Portuguese—the privateer then took out of her such articles as she wanted, dismantled her and gave her up to the crew.

Hides were extremely scarce and high upon the river, in consequence of Artigas's having prohibited the jerking of beef upon the shores; and at the same time exacting double export duties—and the impositions practised by the Portuguese themselves, by no means contributed to lessen the price of that article.

New-York, June 16.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

The ship Prince Maddock, Capt. Choate arrived last evening in 41 days from Greenock. By her we have received Glasgow papers to the 4th May, containing London dates to the 1st three days later than before received.

We are indebted to a respectable mercantile house for a Glasgow Price Current of the 1st of May, and Glasgow papers of the 1st and 4th of the same month, from which we have selected the following articles.

Glasgow, May 1, 1819.

The sales of Cotton during the week amount only to 570 bags, and consist of 41 ordinary to fair Sea Island at 2s 1½d a 2s 5d 5 stained do at 20d, 324 middling to fine bowed Georgia at 12½d a 13½, 73 middling to good New Orleans at 14½d a 16d, 17 good Maranham at 17½d a 17½d, 71 inferior to good Demarara and Berbice at 15½d a 18d, and 39 middling to good West India at 13½ a 14½d per lb. 50 hhds. About 100 casks yellow candle Tallow were sold at 69s a 70s per cwt. 10 tons whale Oil brought L.35 per ton.

The Grain Market is still very dull.—There was some inquiry for good Mealing Oats, under the impression that there was a bare supply of that description; but there were few sales, and no improvement in prices: for the inferior kinds, and Barley, there was no inquiry.

PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE.

London, Saturday Evening } May 1, half past 7. }

It is generally supposed in the City, that the Government Brokers, have sold Exchequer Bills at eight or nine shillings premium to the amount of seven or eight hundred thousand pounds since Tuesday last, the day public notice was given of the intention of government to receive them at a premium of twenty shillings, in part payment of any loan that might be contracted for. That communication, although conveying the first direct intimation that a loan would be required by Ministers, has not materially altered the level of the funds. The fact was considered so certain by the leaders of the Money Market, that speculation had already exhausted itself. To-day was a holiday at the Bank, and consequently no money business was done in the funds. For the 26th May, some purchases of Consols were made at 72 1-8, which raised the price to 72¼ and a bargain or two done at 3-8, but it subsequently declined again to 72 1-8. This afternoon it was rumored on very good authority, that the report of the Bank committee would be closed to-day, and presented to the House of Commons on Monday. The amount of the intended loan forms a subject of anxious speculation in the City, and it is generally supposed, should it not exceed twenty millions, that the funds will improve. The funds closed at the following prices.

Navy 5 per cent	105
4 per cent	90½
Reduced,	72 3-8
3 per cent Consols for money	72 1-8
Exchequer Bills	10s. pm.
Commercial Do.	20s. dis.

An important mercantile failure has taken place at Hamburgh, that very eminent house of Schwartz and Rottick, their debts are said to exceed two millions of marcs banco, equivalent to 120,000 sterling. The stoppage occurred after the regular mail had left Hamburgh, and was sent by an express which overtook it at Cuxhaven.

Stocks are a shade better this morning.—Consols commenced at 72, and afterwards rose to 72¼. The rumors are so various respecting the difficulties that have arisen with regard to the Report of the Bank Committee, that no statement can at present be depended on. The amount of the loan has not yet transpired.

House of Commons, April 29.

CATHOLIC QUESTION.

Lord Castlereagh, seeing a Right Hon. Gentleman (Mr. Grattan) in his place would beg leave to recommend to him to postpone his motion, on the subject of the claims of the Roman Catholics, that stood for to-morrow, to Monday. In the present state of the country, it was extremely desirable that the Report of the Bank Committee should be finished as soon as possible, and said before the House. For this purpose, it was highly expedient that the Committee should sit both to-morrow and Saturday. On that account, he would recommend to the Right Hon. Gentlemen to postpone his motion to Monday.

Mr. Tierney concurred in the recommendation of the Noble Lord, on account of the urgency of the case; but should his right Hon. Friend consent to postpone his motion, he trusted it would be in the understanding that it should have the precedence of all other business on that day.

Lord Castlereagh stated that the army estimates which stood for Monday would be postponed to Friday, so that nothing could interfere with the motion of the right hon. gentleman.

Mr. Grattan then postponed his motion to Monday.

Sir Charles Monck begged to ask the noble lord whether there had been any secret article in the treaty of Vienna, authorizing the session of Parga.

Lord Castlereagh replied in the very lowest tone of conversation, so that it was impossible for us to conjecture what he said.

Sir F. Burdett presented a petition signed by 13,000 persons, inhabitants of London and Westminster, in favor of Catholic emancipation. The claims of the Catholics he observed, to be placed on an entire equality with their Protestant countrymen, could not much longer be denied; it was but fair that those who had their share in all the difficulties and distresses of the country, should also share in the benefits of the constitution. The hon. baronet then presented a similar petition from Liverpool.

A great many other petitions were presented of the same nature; and some of an opposite description.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse. three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, fine improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.
S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.
N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.
S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment. may 25

He is by occupation a farmer, a native of Kent county, in the state of Delaware, had on a blue cloth roundabout jacket, old black silk vest, corded velvet pantaloons, and a wool hat.
He is a very civil, inoffensive man, with rather a down look. There is reason to suppose that he was decoyed into a carriage, and conveyed southward.
Any information respecting him will be thankfully received. Keepers of turnpike gates, toll bridges, and taverns, are particularly requested to give such information as may be in their power.
The above reward will be cheerfully paid on conviction of the perpetrators of this flagrant outrage upon the rights of a freeborn citizen of the United States.

ROMULUS RIGGS,

AT his office, next door below Crawford's tavern. Bridge-st. Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank Notes of the Western Banks at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U. States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns;—all persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on. August 18

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Harness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.

BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE,
Fairfax Court-House, Va.
